YOUR STORY ON JUSTGIVING

On 24 March I will be sleeping out at the Cardinal Hume Centre to raise money to support their work helping those facing homelessness and poverty.

Based in the heart of Westminster, the Centre runs activities for children and families in need to learn and play together; offers expert advice and advocacy for vulnerable; and provides safe accommodation with round-the clock support for homeless young people. Last year 1,200 people came to the Centre for help.

My sleepout challenge will raise money for the Cardinal Hume Centre's vital work. Please sponsor me as I grab my sleeping bag, brave the cold, and help to tackle poverty and homelessness.

Your donation means so much.

- £12 can pay for a young person to travel to college for a week
- £25 can pay for a kitchen 'starter pack' so a young homeless person can learn to cook
- £50 can pay for bedding and towels for when they move into their new room

Thank you for your support!
